Introducing your community relations worker

Ontario Housing Corporation is interested in more than just providing you with housing. We are genuinely interested in the quality of life in your development.

That is why the community relations branch was established.

The community relations worker—your CRW—is that member of your local housing management team available to do everything possible to meet the following objectives:

To ensure the well-being of the tenants.

To encourage and help you feel at home in your development and to be a part of the community at large.

To develop a better understanding of Ontario Housing Corporation and your local housing management.

Please welcome your CRW.

Your CRW is prepared to provide information about your community: schools, churches, shopping, recreation, transportation, other activities.

Your CRW may be able to assist with problems. Helpful advice can be made available from social agencies active in your area, of which your CRW has full knowledge.

Your CRW is the person to ask if you would like information on health services, social assistance programs, budgeting

Your CRW may help you understand some of our policies. If something is bothering you, ask your CRW.

Your CRW wants your ideas on how to make your community a better place in which to live. If you have suggestions, or if you would like to participate in community activities, tell your CRW.

In order to meet you, to know you, your CRW regularly visits all tenants and maintains contact with people in local social, community, municipal and government agencies. In this way, your CRW is able to keep abreast of the activities and developments in all areas of community living.

Your CRW can be an advisor, a listener—or simply someone to turn to.

Your CRW knows your community and would like to know you.
